

FIREWORKS TO-NIGHT WILL DRAW CROWDS

Display in Rear of White House Includes Wilson and Marshall Bombs.

NATIONAL SALUTE WILL LEAD

One of the spectacular features of the inauguration will be the display of fireworks in the White House grounds. The display has been made conditional on the weather, and if the elements do not permit a successful display, the exhibition will be postponed until tomorrow night. A subcommittee of the general fireworks committee will be in charge of the grounds. Isaac Gans is chairman of the committee on fireworks.

A few minutes before the display takes place, a flash and sound signal will be fired as an intimation to the public that the fireworks will shortly commence.

During the interval between the flash and sound signal an announcement of the fireworks. Monstrous fire balloons and airplanes bearing thousands of flares, thunder reports, and other effects, will be sent up.

Grand opening of display—The national salute of 101 guns fired from steel mortars, making twelve reports, can be heard at least five miles.

Special illumination of the grounds—With 200 incandescent lights burning the national colors, changing from red to white to blue.

Display of 200 unexcelled rocket bombs—Fired from three positions so as to form the continued varied lines. These rocket bombs have all the effect of rockets without the danger of falling sticks.

The Star Spangled Banner—Produced in the electric discharge of its shells arranged to depict an aerial nation shield.

Thirty-five batteries of rockets—With glowing, scintillating bodies.

Aerial silver falls—Produced by the electrical discharge of 100 eight-pound rocket bombs bearing lines of unexcelled incandescent lights 1,000 feet long.

The changing cloud—Produced by the electrical discharge of twenty-five rocket bombs bearing lines of red, white, and blue, and ending in sparkling, sparkling, sparkling.

The polyphonic cannon—Produced by twenty-five fifteen-inch three-laced shells containing the unexcelled latest tint and electric effects.

Twenty-five batteries of jeweled mines—With kaleidoscope changes and tints of illuminated colors.

The canon of transient glory—Produced by the electrical display of 100 shells, containing: quivering clouds, diamond chains, meteoric rain, cloud of fire and parading plumes.

Salvo of Ten Rocketing Shells, 20-inch.

Displaying quadruple changing tints, electric streamers, Jacob's ladders, revolving sun, shooting stars, and silver sheen. Ascent of 100 Bayonet Tourbillons—Forming mammoth umbrellas of fire in ascent and descent. Flight of Twenty-six Mammoth Circles—Crowned with jewels. These are wonderful pieces of pyrotechny and make their flight into the air 200 feet high and descend again within a few feet of the ground. They rise again into space throwing off sparks of glowing phosphorescent light, finishing in one mass of dazzling splendor.

Great Clouds of Fireflies and Lightning Bugs—Produced by the discharge of twenty-five twelve-pound rocket bombs, filling the air with grating squirming wonders.

Salvo of Ten Rocketing Shells, 20-inch. Displaying the unexcelled aerial wonders, southern cross, the dipper mother of thousands, liquid fire, burning gardens, Indian jugglers.

Discharge of Twenty-Sixteen-inch Old Glory Shells—Showing the national streamers in brilliant fire.

Grand Flight of Twenty-five Twelve-inch Rocket Bombs—Showing primrose, violet, pansies, laburnum blossoms, passion flowers, and heliotropes.

The Proteus Cattlefish—Produced by an electrical display of twenty-eight-inch three-break shells, filling the air with grating wonders, the long radiating tentacles from these monster shells will cover more than an acre of ground.

Flight of Two Hundred Colored Aerobics—Continuous discharge of electric currents.

The Dissected Fountain of Light—Arranged in three points forth a torrent of dazzling daylight flooding the entire neighborhood with a daylight effect bright as the midday sun.

Popcorn in the Cornfield—Produced by the discharge of twenty-five twelve-pound rocket bombs, filling the sky with the red trailing colors of ripe corn, intermingled with the crimson poppy.

Salvo of Ten Twelve-inch Rocket Bombs—Covering the heavens with glistening Japanese blossoms, such break a different light.

Display of 100 Mammoth "Devil-Among-the-Tails"—A grand eruption of music, explosions and serpents in a mad maelstrom of confusion, causing noise of laughter.

Grand Flight of 20 Rocketing Shells, 20-inch. Displaying the unexcelled aerial wonders, southern cross, the dipper mother of thousands, liquid fire, burning gardens, Indian jugglers.

NEXT VICE PRESIDENT SPENDS A QUIET DAY

Gov. Marshall Arrives Early and Ignores the Suffragette Parade.

SENATOR GORE MAKES CALL

Vice President-elect Marshall remained quietly closeted in his room yesterday. He went over a large pile of correspondence and held a number of conferences with various Senators. He exchanged a brief greeting with President-elect Wilson on Mr. Wilson's arrival at the Shoreham and then again sought his room. Arriving at 7:30 o'clock, the Governor partook of an early breakfast with Mrs. Marshall. They breakfasted in the public dining room of the Shoreham Hotel, no one else being at their table.

The Governor returned to his apartment and began consideration of his correspondence.

"I will not see the suffragette parade," he announced. "There are other and more important things that demand my attention."

While the parade of women was making its way up Pennsylvania Avenue, the Vice President-elect was closeted with Senator Gore of Oklahoma.

Gore Makes a Call.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma, one of the men who was prominently mentioned as a member of Wilson's Cabinet, was the first of a series of visitors at the Governor's apartment today.

After the conference was over, Gov. Marshall was asked what it portended.

"Oh, we discussed progressive politics," laughed the Governor, "and Senator Gore and I seem to agree."

After a perusal of the senatorial precedents established by the late Vice President James Schuyler Sherman, Vice President-elect Marshall announced today that he will follow the existing custom.

Apparently, the late Vice President enlarged Senate business to the maximum of efficiency, said the Vice President-elect. "His rules have been approved generally and I will not change them unless there is a general party demand for some reversal of the present system."
